

OXFORD HOUSE INC.

Recovery Without Relapse

Origin...

- Oxford House started with one house in Silver Spring, Maryland in 1975.
- Individuals in recovery can live in an Oxford House as long as they stay drug and alcohol free and pay an equal amount of the household expenses.
- Stability in houses is a result of residents moving out when they believe it is the “right thing to do” and that they are comfortable enough in sobriety to avoid relapse.
- The homes are self-run and utilize rented, nice, single-family houses keeping expansion costs low.
- Houses are available to men, women, women with children and men with children.
- Today, there are more than 3200 Oxford Houses throughout the United States and in several other countries.

Three Core Principles of an Oxford house:

Financially self-supporting

Democratically ran

Immediate expulsion
for relapse

How an Oxford House Gets Started in Your Region

- Oxford House sends outreach workers to an area, where they introduce themselves to the newly sober community, through treatment facilities, AA or NA meetings and other community programs.
- After approaching individuals interested in Oxford House residency and a suitable rental residence is selected, the new residents move in.
- These individuals – with the help of OHI – then organize the house under the guidelines set by the Oxford House program.
